JULY 2018

From the Chamber President:

Greetings Chamber Members!

July is a great time to be in St. Joseph! Of course, I mean the "Joetown Rocks Parish Festival" July 3-4. Free live music, good food, and a great 4th of July Parade! More than that, we celebrate our Declaration of Independence, signed on July 4, 1776, when American colonies were declared free and independent of Great Britain.

Come to think of it, maybe that's exactly how you started your business? You decided to declare yourself free of the tyranny of pleasing some overinflated middle-manager? Or you wanted to create your own hours? Maybe you felt the driving need to explore what really sparks your passion? Think back to that time and remember why you started the business....why you took the job...what you still love about your role. We all need continued renewal in our minds to stay positive – it's the only way to grow your business.

I'm reading Dr. Bob Rotella's "How Champions Think: In Sports And In Life." He says: "Exceptional people, I have found, either start out being optimistic or learn to be optimistic because they realize that they can't get what they want in life without being optimistic." That is something I have been reminding myself of lately. When business is booming, things are great. But you also have to strive to be optimistic when sales are down, which happens in every business. I highly recommend picking up Dr. Rotella's book for your summer reading.

Thank you so much to Tiffany Clements, who presented "Social Media on a Shoestring" at our June meeting. I would also like to thank everyone from SPOT Rehabilitation and Home Health Care who hosted, as well as Bello Cucina for the delicious lunch. Coming up in July, our host is Gabriel Media and Dan Bullert of the Initiative Foundation will be presenting "Small Loans for Growth." I'm looking forward to Coborn's catering special lunch.

I would also like to thank Bob Ringstrom and Kerry Peterson who have filled in as emcee for me at the past few meetings when my schedule was overloaded!

Best Regards

Leslie Lane, St. Joseph Area Chamber of Commerce President

When is Rehabilitation and Home Health Care beneficial?

REHABILITATION: The childhood years through adolescence are vital for the proper growth and development of balance, movement and strength. In childhood physical therapy, we help children develop proper motor functions using special techniques and care.

Occupational therapy can help children with disabilities develop important life skills and fine motor skills through a specialized and personal training program designed to treat every child, regardless of their disability.

Sometimes, especially in the first years of life, it's difficult to determine whether a child has a possible speech disability or not. Speech therapists can help with motor difficulties in the tongue, jaw or throat, or by teaching the child and parents other methods of effective communication.

HOME HEALTH CARE: Home health care is a system of care provided by skilled practitioners to patients in their homes under the direction of a physician. Home health care services include nursing care; physical, occupational, and speech-language therapy; and medical social services. The goals of home health care services are to help individuals to improve function and live with greater independence; to promote the client's optimal level of well-being; and to assist the patient to remain at home, avoiding hospitalization or admission to long-term care institutions. Home Care can assist with medication management, fall prevention, assessment of quality care in the home setting, resources that can assist in keeping one in their desired home setting for as long as safety allows.

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) estimates that home health care agencies in the United States provide care for more than 2.4 million people annually. Common diagnoses among home health care patients include circulatory disease, heart disease, injury, stroke, MS, ALS, weakness, swallowing difficulty and respiratory disease.

If you would like to learn more about Rehabilitation and Home Health Care services and if you or someone you know could benefit, please call us. SPOT Rehabilitation and Home Health Care, 320.259.4151.

Cutting Through the Cloud of Uncertainty When Hiring

By: Bob Ringstrom

Finding the right candidate for your open position is certainly important. But hiring managers today must employ tools beyond the typical criminal background check, resumé and interview. Hiring an employee is an investment. Make a 'wise investment' and not one that may have to be written off as a loss.

When a job candidate is engaging in the process of trying to land a job, they are "selling themselves". What they say or demonstrate in the selection process may be open and revealing. It may be deceptive. Nevertheless, they want the job! Social media platforms like Facebook, LinkedIn, Instagram and Twitter can be very revealing as to the candidate's true character.

These tools can confirm what the candidates present themselves to be. A profile may not necessarily display red flags or criminal acts, but they may reveal clues of a person's attitude and work ethic. A person's online posts may also confirm an active and healthy social life; supporting the impression that the individual had presented in an interview.

A simple Google search of the person's name can uncover news articles or historical records of employment. And the hiring manager shouldn't stop with the first page of Google results. Negative content may be buried on later pages.

Angellist is a site that shows a user's work history and is a great indicator of how often a potential hire has changed jobs.

Quora is a tool that can show how a new recruit's mind works. On Quora, a user answers various questions, and you can review the information and answers the person has posted.

Some 'rejected candidates' may be growing more prudent regarding their otherwise private activities and the influence on their employment chances. One may even consider it as cultural maturing!

Bob Ringstrom is a Staffing Analyst & President of Strata Performance

Make a wise investment and find the right candidate for your open position.
